

September edition

E-safety bulletin

Resources, articles and tips via clickable links!

1. Real consequences of online actions

(clickable link) After the spread of misinformation online this summer, TES have created an article and a helpful acronym (SIFT) to consider before you spread information. S – Stop making snap decisions. I – Investigate the source. F – Find better coverage. T – Trace the claim.

2. Smartphone free childhood

(clickable link) The Smartphone Free Childhood movement began in February 2024 when friends set up a WhatsApp group to support each other in the decision to hold off on buying their kids' smartphones. To their amazement, within 24 hours, thousands of other parents had joined the group after an Instagram post by it went viral. Website resources include smartphone alternatives and ways to engage

3. Video games and children – a guide for parents.

(clickable link) UNICEF have created a helpful article on how to create a positive and safe gaming environment for your child.

E-safety thought

Question taken from article 1 – Do your children understand the consequences of their online actions?